THE PROBLEM

Every NYC business navigates a compliance maze. Alone.

When a DOH inspector leaves, an owner receives a paper notice listing violations. After that — nothing. No guidance, no deadlines, no roadmap. And DOH is just one of the agencies most businesses must navigate simultaneously.

- Re-inspection can happen within 7 days — owners don't know when
- Critical violations carry fines up to $1,000 each, and they stack
- Missing a remediation deadline escalates the fine automatically
- No service handles this end-to-end for a small business
- DOH charges $400 for their own consultation just to explain a notice

THE SCALE · NYC 2026 · LIVE DATA

This isn't a niche problem. It's the whole city.

Every business in New York City answers to multiple regulatory agencies. The figures below are from DOH alone — one of eight or more agencies most businesses must simultaneously navigate.

Add DOB permits, FDNY inspections, DCWP license renewals, SLA filings — the same businesses are navigating all of this simultaneously, with zero infrastructure support.

THE FINANCIAL IMPACT

A single inspection can cost thousands. A consultant costs more.

Fines stack. Each critical violation is a separate charge. Add re-inspection fees, emergency vendors, and days of closure — a surprise inspection easily becomes a $10,000+ event.

Critical violation fine (per violation)	$200–$1,000
Average critical violations per inspection	2.8×
Re-inspection fee (DOH)	$150–$350
Emergency remediation (pest / HVAC)	$800–$3,000
Revenue lost per day of closure	$2,000–$8,000

TYPICAL TOTAL EVENT COST	$5K–$15K+

REVENUE IMPACT

Harvard research on 15,000+ NYC restaurants found A grades drive measurably higher revenue. One Yelp star = 5–9% revenue shift. C grades increase closure probability significantly.

REPUTATION

Operators report months to regain customer trust after a public health violation. Negative hygiene reviews reduce seat fill rate for weeks after posting.

ANNUAL CONSULTANT COST

Hiring a compliance expeditor for ongoing multi-agency management costs $5,000–$20,000/year. Most small businesses can't afford it — so they wing it.

THE SOLUTION

BureauAI handles your compliance — completely.

Three service tiers. No consultants. No missed deadlines. No surprises.
Starting at $99/mo — a fraction of what a compliance expeditor costs.

01

We Watch

Continuous monitoring across every relevant agency. We surface violations, upcoming deadlines, and inspection risk before they become emergencies. Owners get a clear dashboard — not a pile of paper.

02

We Respond

Violation notice received? We draft the response, coordinate the re-inspection, and manage appeals with the relevant agency on the owner's behalf — same business day.

03

We File

Permits, license applications, and renewals submitted directly to NYC agencies — DOH, DOB, FDNY, DCWP, SLA and more. The owner never touches a form.

HOW IT WORKS

Five minutes to onboard. Then we own it.

We pull your full agency history from NYC Open Data the moment you sign up. No forms, no uploads. We already know what you owe.

1

You Tell Us Once

Business name, type, and borough. We cross-reference NYC Open Data, pull your violation history, active permits, and outstanding filings across every agency automatically.

2

We Map Every Obligation

Our AI reads every permit, license, and filing requirement across DOH, DOB, FDNY, DCWP, SLA, and more. A complete compliance picture in under 60 seconds — for free.

3

We Handle Everything

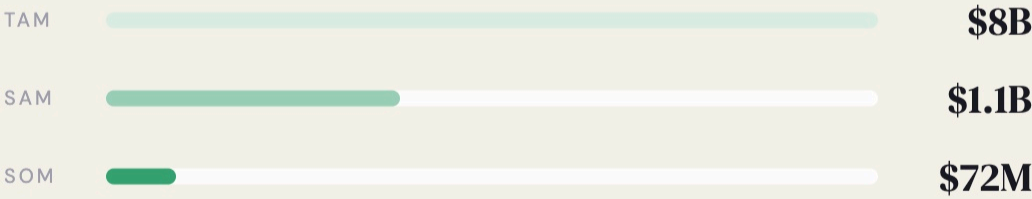

Filings submitted. Violations responded to. Renewals filed on time. Your dashboard shows exactly what we're handling in real time. You run your restaurant.

The business model is simple: monthly software subscription per location. The compliance work that costs businesses $5K–$20K/year in consultant fees — we deliver for a fraction of that, automatically, with no human in the loop.

MARKET SIZE
